LAST OSEEN FOR ACADEMIC YEAR

This June of OSEEN marks the last issue of the publication for the academic year 1978-79. It has been a pleasure to serve you as editor this year, a task which would have been much more difficult had it not been for your contributions and, particularly, the help of Nancy Hines and Mary Henkener who got it out on time for you twice a month. Have a good summer!

RADIO FREE EUROPE, RADIO LIBERTY INTERNSHIP PROGRAM IN GERMANY, JUNE 10-SEPTEMBER 15, 1979

(724) RFE/RL, Inc., a non-profit, private corporation, operating under American management and funded by Congressional grants supplied by the Presidentially-appointed Board for International Broadcasting, is pleased to announce the establishment of a Summer Student Research Internship Program for the Summer of 1979 in Munich, Germany for up to six students. Any graduate student formally matriculated in an American or European university in the fields of East European and Soviet affairs, East-West relations, or international communications is eligible to participate. The Program is scheduled to last 6-12 weeks from mid-June to mid-September depending on the nature of research involved.

The Program is designed to provide students maximum exposure to personal and archival resources available at Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty which are unique in their respective fields. The Program entails a full-time, forty-hour per week research undertaking. Each student will be assigned to work under the guidance of a senior staff member depending on language qualifications, academic background and mutual preferences. Proficiency in the English language is required. A reading knowledge of one or more of the 21 languages of broadcast or German, French, Italian, Serbo-Croatian, Albanian is desired but not required. The goal of the Program is a research paper that may be published by the Radio. In addition, it is expected that the students will absorb a good deal of information about the policies and activities of this unique international broadcast operation.

RFE/RL will pay for economy air travel tickets to and from Munich, as well as a small stipend and modest living quarters in Munich for the duration of the Internship.

Students may apply for up to four units of graduate-level transfer credits by registering with the University of Southern California, School of International Relations, Munich, Germany.

Interested students should submit their curriculum vitae and two recommendations regarding academic performance to: Mr. Douglas Montondo, Executive Assistant to the President, RFE/RL, Inc. at either of the following addresses: 1201 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 or Oettingenstrasse 67, 8000 Munich 22, West Germany.

The MacGahan American-Bulgarian Foundation. Participants of the New Lexington, Ohio, 1978 Centennial Commemoration of J.A. MacGahan's death have formed the MacGahan American-Bulgarian Foundation. The Board of Trustees of the Foundation include Professor J.F. Clarke, chairman; Dr. G. Tabakov, vice-chairman and executive director; Barbara James, secretary; George Petrov, Treasurer; Mayor (of New Lexington) O. Huffman, ex officio; Dr. George Paprikoff; and Pando Pappas. The Foundation was underwritten with a twelve thousand dollar donation. The goals of the Foundation are "1. The possession of a home for the Foundation. 2. Making New Lexington the birth place and the graveside of MacGahan, a place of pilgrimage, a shrine. 3. Making a tradition of the June Festival in New Lexington. 4. The organization of a constant flow of people, especially youth to the Museum, Library and Archives. 5. Preparing and helping young people to succeed and perpetuate the aims of the Foundation."

The first annual festival of the MacGahan Foundation will be held in New Lexington, June 16, 1979, with historical, ethnic, and artistic exhibits and performances. A book containing the proceedings of the 1978 commemorative meeting edited by James and Esther Clarke will appear at that time. (Source: Bulgarian Studies Association Newsletter)

NEW PUBLICATIONS

(727) The Soviet Lawyer and His System, by George Dana Cameron III (Michigan International Business Studies, No. 14, 1978, xii + 198 pages, $9.00)

Professor Cameron discusses at length the limitations placed on lawyers' activities throughout the Soviet period by the negative ideological context in which they have had to operate. Yet he maintains that the current legal climate in Soviet Russia represents a marked improvement over conditions twenty years ago.

In the course of his evaluation Professor Cameron examines and compares the extent of the coverage of legal topics over the past twenty-five years in Pravda and Izvestia, the two leading periodicals in the USSR. He also surveys post-1945 Western literature as well as Soviet legal literature, much of which has not been indexed previously. The full documentation and bibliography as well as suggested methods for further research make this book an invaluable reference for all those interested in the current state of the Soviet legal system.

Order from: Division of Research, Graduate School of Business Administration, The University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

(728) Communism in Eastern Europe, edited by Teresa Rakowska-Harmstone and Andrew Gyorgy.

Vernon V. Aspaturian leads off with a look at "Eastern Europe in World Perspective," and three other chapters treat thematic or functional topics concerning the area as a whole. The remaining eight chapters consider each country separately, examining such subjects as precommunist political and social conditions; the circumstances of the Communist takeover after World War II; the evolution of each economy, society, and political system under Communist rule; the political leadership; and relations with other countries. This constructive format will enable students to come to terms with the complex issues that have emerged from one of the world's most turbulent regions.

Send order and payment ($7.95) to: Department M C, Indiana University Press, Tenth and Madison Streets, Bloomington, Indiana 47405.

(729) An Annotated Bibliography of General Works in English on the Germans from Russia, by Andrew Klingelhoefter and edited by John Newman.

The bibliography will be comprised of approximately 50 general books and articles intended to provide basic and intermediate reading on such subjects as emigration to Russia, settlement and conditions in the colonies there, migration from Russia, arrival in the United States, and the life and culture of the German Russians. Included are such well known books as The Volga Germans, The Czar's Germans, and Second Hoeing, as well as lesser known and more recent publications. For each title there will be full bibliographic data, as well as a written description of the content. The list will be useful, therefore, for librarians, teachers, and the general reader by providing the information needed to select books or periodicals of interest.

For further information, contact: Department of History, Germans From Russia in Colorado, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado 80523.
